

Dear FCC,
Sinclair Broadcasting is planning to air a very negative documentary about John Kerry. It is scheduled for some days before the presidential election, Nov. 2. Why is a broadcasting company in charge of what the public is allowed to view? Who makes this sort of decision to propagandize an unknowing public? I feel strongly that Sinclair is violating the public trust. I would like to see their license revoked and the same for any other companies that would like to violate the public in this way.
Sincerely,
Sally Spurr
